Communists overrun Viet province

SAIGON (UPI)--Advancing North Vietnamese troops seized the last two outlying South Vietnamese bases in the country's northernmost province Sunday and pushed government defenders into the provincial capital of Quang Tri, 18 miles south of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ). Four U.S. aircraft were lost in support actions.

Heavy fighting also was reported Sunday along the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon and small-scale rocket barrages hit two major government bases at the provincial capitals of Pleiku and Kontum in the Central Highlands. No details were disclosed.

The major North Vietnamese drive, however, was in Quang Tri Province where three divisions, or nearly 30,000 Communist troops, were moving battalion-sized units with sizeable armor support. The tanks were moving freely over the open flatlands north of the provincial capital.

Military sources said remnants of Saigon's 3rd Infantry Division and two marine brigades were preparing for a last-ditch stand at Quang Tri, headquarters for the division.

It appeared Sunday night to most military officers the North Vietnamese were going to go for broke and attempt to overrun Quang Tri City and the entire province of 270,000 population.

Such a move, if successful, would throw a pessimistic shroud over President Nixon's entire Vietnamization program.

Dong Ha, a city of 10,000 persons eight miles to the north, was in flames Sunday night and believed in Communist hands, while the two holdout bases among the 12 along two fronts at the DMZ-- Camp Carroll and Mai Loc-- were reported overrun earlier by Communist troops.

Quang Tri itself, with 40,000 people, was heavily shelled Sunday and helicopter pilots said they were using the exploding rockets and mortars as reference points. The Communists took control of U.S.-supplied 175 mm longrange artillery guns seized at Camp Carroll and trained them on the city.

Thousands of refugees were fleeing south to escape the fighting. Sources said "at least 12,000" men, women and children were uprooted in the wake of the offensive and that many of them were heading for the old imperial capital of Hue, Vietnam's third largest city, 30 miles south of Quang Tri.

American officers at U.S. Army Headquarters Vietnam, 15 miles north of Saigon, quickly formed a new helicopter troop of 26 choppers, 62 pilots and 35 crewmen and maintenance men and ordered them to the battleground via Hue.

At least two U.S. helicopters supporting the beleaguered Saigon troops were shot down Sunday and U.S. military sources also reported the crash of an American F4 Phantom jet fighter in Quang Tri Province, although it was believed hit over Laos, and the downing of U.S. electronic spy plane. Details were not immediately disclosed.

Meanwhile, a North Vietnamese radio communique monitored in Paris reiterated Communist claims three U.S. warplanes were shot down Saturday during raids on Vinh Linh Province just north of the DMZ. There was no U.S. confirmation of the report.

The North Vietnamese drove 12 tanks to within sight of Dong Ha in broad daylight Sunday and staged a duel with South Vietnamese armor, spokesmen said. Government warplanes called in by ground troops knocked out seven of the tanks, sources claimed.

The Communists successfully used the tanks in overrunning Camp Carroll and Mai Loc marine base. Shielded by the armor and protected from allied warplanes by a lowhanging cloud cover, the North Vietnamese in human waves burst through the defenses of both camps.

The defenders fled Mai Loc. But infantrymen at Carroll hung up a white flag and surrendered. Two soldiers were shot to death by the regimental commander at the base after the surrender vote was taken, but he was overpowered and the Communists admitted inside.

A few minutes earlier, U.S. advisers at the camp were plucked to safety by an American helicopter. American advisers at Mai Loc still were missing.

The Hanoi government was reported to be confident the offensive would deal a serious blow to the "Vietnamization" policies of the Nixon administration and win political concessions from Washington if and when the Paris peace conference, suspended by Nixon March 23, resumes, diplomatic sources in Paris.

Kidnapers arrested

BUENOS AIRES — President Alejandro Lanusse announced Sunday night that the principal kidnapers of Fiat executive Oberdan Sallustro had been arrested but that Sallustro had not been located. "Security forces have arrested the main perpetrators of the kidnap of Dr. Oberdan Sallustro," Lanusse told newsmen summoned to Los Olivos, the presidential residence. "His whereabouts are still unknown."

IRA urged to stop war

BELFAST — Ulster Catholics marched in illegal parades, but there wasn't any violence. As they marched, William Cardinal Conway, the spiritual leader of Ireland's Roman Catholics, called on the Irish Republican Army to call off its guerrilla war against British rule. It was the first time the full weight of church authority had been brought against the IRA. (Related story page 2).

Boyle seeks new trial

WASHINGTON — Tony Boyle will seek a new trial in the wake of his conviction on 13 counts of making illegal political contributions from union funds. Two other United Mine Workers officials were acquitted on all counts against them. Long-time opponents of the UMW president indicated they might not wait until all appeals are exhausted before trying to oust him.

Fires kill 12,000

WASHINGTON — Fires last year killed 12,000 Americans, crippled or injured more than 330,000 others and caused nearly $3 billion in property damage, according to the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control. The panel said single-family dwellings and high-rise buildings are particularly dangerous.

Busing decree affects 50 cases

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's proposed moratorium on new busing decrees could affect the outcome of about 50 school desegregation cases that are now before federal courts across the nation. These are cases in which the federal judges presumably would be barred from ordering any additional busing until Congress enacts the President's proposed guidelines that would de-emphasize busing as a desegregation tool.

Harrisburg 7 jury remain deadlocked

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)—A jury convicted the Rev. Philip F. Berrigan Sunday of smuggling a letter from federal prison but remained deadlocked over a verdict on other charges against the antiwar priest and his fellow members of the Harrisburg Seven.

The jury of nine women and three men was were ordered to resume deliberation today on the government's principal charge that Berrigan and the others plotted to kidnap presidential advisor Henry A. Kissinger, blow up federal heating systems and raid draft boards in nine states.

It was only after 33 hours of deliberation during the past four days that the jurors could report unanimous agreement on the one charge—that on May 24, 1970 Berrigan illegally sent a letter from the Lewisburg, Pa., penitentiary to Sister Elizabeth McAlister, one of his codefendants.

The conviction carries a maximum prison sentence of 10 years, twice the possible penalty for conviction on the main charge of conspiracy on which all seven defendants were indicted.

The jury reported to Judge R. Dixon Herman that it was unable to agree on a verdict for the conspiracy charge, or on other charges that Berrigan and Sister Elizabeth smuggled letters and made written threats against Kissinger.

The judge balked, however, at the request of the jurors to be excused. He sent them back into deliberation for nearly another hour, and then allowed the jurors to recess until 9 a.m. today.

"If you cannot arrive at a unanimous verdict the court will not be able to do anything but dismiss you," Herman said. "If the jury becomes hopelessly deadlocked then the court must dismiss you, but for now I'm asking you to continue."

Herman explained that not only the length of the trial, but considerable expense—estimated by some at about $1 million —was involved. In addition, he said, there was "unliklihood that we could get a better jury at another time..."

Berrigan, sitting with his head rested on one hand, showed no immediate emotion as the verdict was read but moments later when Sister Elizabeth turned and whispered to him he looked angered by what she said.

The letter involved in the conviction was one that Berrigan allegedly sent from prison via Boyd F. Douglas Jr., another inmate allowed to leave the grounds and attend a nearby school. About two weeks after the letter was sent, Douglas became an FBI informant and later was the government's star witness in the trial.

Women's rights rules broadened

Dow Jones-Ottaway News

WASHINGTON — The government has significantly broadened its interpretation of women's employment rights.

It also has decided that men are entitled to certain job related benefits many states have conferred only upon women.

In guidelines that take effect with their publication this week in the federal register, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission establishes that:

— Hiring policies that exclude women from jobs because of pregnancy violate the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

— Benefits from health or insurance plans for sickness or temporary physical disability must be extended to women employes disabled by pregnancy, miscarriage, abortion, childbirth or recovery from any of these.

— Firing employes because of absences exceeding allowed leave time may be unlawful if this practice has a disproportionate impact on one sex. Basically, this means that an employer permitting employes five days leave time a year may be in violation of the law if he fires a woman who, because of pregnancy, missed several weeks of work.

"This puts employers with unreasonably short leaves on notice that their policies may be illegal," said one EEOC official.

At the same time, the federal job-bias agency revised existing guidelines relating to women's protective legislation adopted by many states. The agency's previous position was that state laws limiting the hours women could work, weights they could lift or the jobs they could hold were in violation of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which bars employment discrimination because of sex. The revised guidelines extend to men certain benefits previously limited by state law to women, such as lower retirement ages and minimum wage laws that applied only to women.

States failing to bring their laws into conformity with the EEOC guidelines will be open to court challenge on the ground they are violating the civil-rights law.

The new guidelines adopted by the five-member commission are advisor and don't have the force of law. An EEOC spokesman explained that they are intended to give guidance to courts, employers and labor unions as to how the EEOC interprets the law.

Sun shines on paraders

Bird, poodle bonnets gild the lilly

NEW YORK (UPI)—Easter paraders enjoyed Sunday's early-spring sun and gaped at an array of headgear including a caged bird, a poodle, an "octopus" and a model of Puerto Rico's capitol.

Early morning drizzles gave way to bright sunshine and 50-degree temperatures. Thousands of holidaymakers were lined up for six blocks along Fifth Avenue by the time police closed the avenue to traffic at 11:50 a.m. so the parade could begin.

Many bystanders who didn't understand what was happening remained on the curb waiting for the parade to appear.

"Everybody's looking, but they don't know for what," said Police Capt. Edward McHale. "I guess the bad weather must have scared away a lot of people who come from out of town."

Paraders in colorful bonnets enjoyed immediate popularity. Shutterbugs with an array of cameras surged around, forming a tight circle and asking for this pose or that.

Ingrid Acevedo of Brooklyn stood quaking in fear as dozens of people pressed closer for a zoom closeup of the sparrow which hopped in a cage on her head. Her father gripped her hand tightly and went wandering through the crowd, asking "Which way is the TV?"

Winnie Hagan of Manhattan said the chartreuse creation on her head was an inspiration of her own.

"I made it myself," she said. "I call it my octopus."

A virtual Conga line of outlandish hats which drew a great shout arose from the crowd proved to be the winners of an Easter bonnet contest sponsored by Latin-oriented television stations in San Juan and New York.

One woman wore a styrofoam recreation of the San Juan Capitol building which began to disintegrate as the crowd swarmed around her.

Another woman with an ostentatiously dressed poodle held the dog to her head for the benefit of photographers.

Most paraders wore conservative clothing. A number had raincoats just in case.

Other Easter observances included a rock gospel group concert on the mall in Central Park, a dawn service at Radio City Music Hall and a live (WCBS-TV) telecast of services in Riverside Church.

Pope appeals for peace

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI Sunday told persecuted Christians in the "churches of silence" that they are not forgotten, and appealed in his Easter message for an end to "war, hatred and bloodshed."

The message came after the Pope celebrated mass in bright sunshine on the steps of St. Peter's Basilica. Before him stretched a crowd estimated by Vatican Radio to number 120,000 persons in the square, with tens of thousands more in the approaches to it.

"Will our greeting of peace reach our churches of silence on this feast of the risen Christ?" the Pope asked, using for the first time in several years a term which used to be applied to Christian communities in Communist lands.

"In many vast regions of the earth, there still exist, or rather there still languish, those humble undaunted communities or individuals who are denied legitimate expression of their religious and church life," the Pope said.

"Let these individual souls know, let these restricted and oppressed churches know—if ever the echo of our words this Easter reaches them—that they are not forgotten. They are assured of our solidarity in faith and love ..."

Baseball strike continues with no progress seen

NEW YORK (UPI)—For the second straight day there was "no progress" made between negotiators Marvin Miller and John Gaherin Sunday as the major league players baseball strike continued with little hope that a settlement could be reached by opening day on Wednesday.

Miller, Executive Director of the Players Association, and Gaherin, chief consel for the club owners, met for an hour and a half at Gaherin's office in midtown New York, but the issues at hand remained at a status quo. The two parties said they would meet again today at 11 a.m. EST.

"There's been no progress," said Gaherin. "The separation between the two parties hasn't narrowed although we spent today trying to narrow it. The main issues remain the same."

The major league players, who voted by a 47 0 margin to go on strike, are seeking a 17 per cent increase in the pension fund, amounting to $1,072,000. The players insist this amount is necessary to bring the plan up to cost-of-living parity with what it was worth at the time of the last contract three years ago.

The players contend that there is $817,000 surplus available due to increased rates on interest loans, overfunding und overestimating payments for disabled players. They are asking that the owners free this money and make it available for the fund, in addition to kicking in $11,000 per club, which would account for the $1,072,000 total. Gaherin said that the owners have already made their annual contribution of $5.4 million to the fund and also claimed the owners have offered $400,000 to add to the health benefit part of the plan.

Certain owners have suggested that to free the $817,000 for the fund would be impractical and would undermine the fund.

The strike has shut down all spring training operations and forced cancellation of all exhibition games since Saturday. The Houston Astros and the Cincinnati Reds are scheduled to open the season on April 5 but that games seems very doubtful at this stage.

"This whole thing is a traumatic experience," said Gaherin, "and I earnestly hope the situation is resolved as soon as possible. We think this matter should be decided by collective bargaining. We do not want to transfer the issue to a third party who has no real authority over our business and doesn't know its ins and outs." The players had previously agreed to halt the strike if the owners would consent to binding arbitration through a third party.

Baherin said he had recommended to Miller that the pension fund be studied by acutaries, approved by the owners or a panel of actuaries that would be acceptable to both parties.

"The recommendations of the actuaries will then be examined in good faith and then we'll make our recommendations," said Gaherin. "We may approve of some points of the program and disapprove of others."

Gaherin said it was unfortunate that the issue had reached a stage where the players felt a strike was necessary.

"The players simply misunderstand the situation," said Gaherin," and the positions of the clubs have not been clearly stated in reporting. The position we're taking is designed to preserve benefits the players now have. Not a single major league player will be deprived of a benefit in 1972 that he had in 1971.

"Considering the fact that we're willing to subject the whole pension system to a close examination, why should there be a strike? I don't know."

Gaherin said that he was in close contact with both league presidents Joe Cronin of the American and Chub Feeney of the National but that neither was present at doday's meeting while Miller.

Cronin and Feeney are expected to be present at Monday's meeting while Miller, will probably attend with counsel and some player representatives.

Most spring training camps were deserted Sunday as players made their way home from Florida and Arizona. The Kansas City Royals 24 of the 28 roster members, did work out at a junor college field in Fort Myers, Fla., and said they would do so again today. But the majority of the players have packed their bags and left, awaiting a decision that would get them back.

Shapp asks farmers support to end milk controls

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp is asking farmers to support his new bill to end retail milk price controls in Pennsylvania.

As a result, the consumer-oriented bill contains new protections for the farmers who produce milk.

The bill, which Shapp has kept secret for many weeks, will be unveiled shortly. The governor is hoping for endorsements from such groups as the Pennsylvania Farmers Association (PFA).

The main purpose of the bill is to give a better break to consumers, who often pay as much as 35-cents a gallon over prices in surrounding states.

An amendment to the 1934 Milk Marketing Law, the bill would strip the Milk Marketing Board of its power to set minimum retail milk prices.

The bill is designed to let milk prices fall to their own level on the competitive market, but it also includes some safeguards against unfair competition.

It prohibits dairies from selling at cost or below, mandates a 5 per cent retail mark-up and prohibits dealers from charging different prices to different customers.

Farmers would be guaranteed prompt payment for their milk sold to the dairies and they could charge interest to delinquent dairies.

The bill comes on the heels of an unprecedented ruling last week by the Milk Marketing Board. The members of the board voted 2-1 to lower minimum retail prices in western Pennsylvania by 8 cents.

The dairymen were furious about the pricing order. It was the first major drop in prices in recent history.

The order was approved by board Chairman Harry Kaplean and Nina Gowell of Pittsburgh, both hand-picked appointees of Shapp. J. Lin Huber, former chairman and a dairy farmer, dissented.

The most important provision in Shapp's bill prohibits milk dairies and handlers from selling milk as a "loss leader" at cost or below "for the purposes of injuring, harassing, lessening or destroying competition."

Pennsylvania's 38-year-old milk law originally was enacted to prevent price wars and instability in the market.

A spokesman for the PFA said this "cost or below" provision is what the farmers want. "This way they will be forced to sell slightly over cost," he said.

Retail stores would be forced to price their milk at least 5 per cent over cost under the Shapp bill. Most stores would charge a higher markup.

This provision makes certain that stores do not use cheap milk as a means of luring customers inside to buy other things.

The bill also says that a dealer cannot charge a variety of prices. It prohibits them from using any gimmicks like rebates, premiums or discounts to their customers.

The new provisions for the farmer are designed to make sure he gets paid for the milk. It sets up a standard "due date" and increases bonding for dairies buying milk from Pennsylvania farmers.

The farmers would have to be paid on the last day of the month for milk sold during the first 15 days. Payment for milk sold during the last half of the month would be required before the 20th of the following month. If the milk dealer defaults on this deadline, he would have to pay interest to the farmer. The Milk Marketing Board would be empowered to set the interest rate.

The Shapp amendments also lift the ceiling on bonding of dealers from $200,000 to $400,000. The bonds are required to protect the farmer against a dealer who cannot pay his bills. The board also would have a new power to reject a corporate surety bond.

There are 232 "juggers" in Pennsylvania — farmers who produce, process and sell the milk on their own property. They do not have to be licensed as dealers.

Under the Shapp bill, the juggers would have more freedom. They would no longer be restricted by a provision limiting each of their customers to two gallons of milk per day.

They also would be able to buy milk from other producers in fallow seasons, which currently is prohibited.

Northern Irish crave peace; outlawed IRA wants war

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — If there is one thing Northern Ireland's people crave, it is peace. If there is one thing the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) dreads, it is peace.

This bitter contradiction sprang into sharp focus Sunday with growing reports of organized, outspoken opposition among bomb-weary Roman Catholics toward violence and the men who cause it.

IRA leaders think the only thing that can rob them of victory is this sort of pressure for and end to their campaign of bomb and bullet.

"Peace is the enemy," a leader of the militant provisional wing of the IRA said recently.

"Peace means compromise — the acceptance of something short of full victory," he said. "That we cannot accept."

The IRA's whole history makes rejection of peaceful compromise the only logical response from men who are dedicated wholly to achieving their aims.

These they have listed as the establishment of a unified 32 county Irish Republic with a socialist philosophy.

Among its short-term aims the IRA has mentioned abolition of the Northern Ireland Parliament (Stormont) and the withdrawal of British troops from the streets, coupled with the release of all internees and an amnesty for political prisoners.

The suspension of Stormont by the British government has partially met one of the IRA aims. But according to its leaders, the fight should now be intensified to achieve the remainder.

Recent demands for some sort of a truce, lasting from one month to three, are seen by IRA leaders as an attempt to impose a partial solution instead of full independence.

"What these people are really saying to us is 'accept a new deal from Britain and abandon your aim of national unity,'" an IRA leader explained.

"That we will never do. That we could never do and remain true to our Republican deals."

But many IRA leaders are realists. They know they depend upon the Catholic ghettos to maintain their campaign against British troops. Those leaders headquartered near Dublin know also they cannot maintain their campaign without full backing from northern units.

The leadership of the Belfast brigade of the provisional IRA supports the decision of the republic-based leadership to continue the fight. But many lower ranks have been altering under pressure at street level.

The most likely outcome of the present pressure campaign is an easing of offensive action without any commitment by the IRA.

Chamber to fight tax bill

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The state Chamber of Commerce has indicated it will fight a bill in the House which would allow graduated income taxes.

Robert Hibbard, the Chamber's executive director, said the bill — a proposed amendment to the state Constitution — is too broad in scope.

"Voters will apparently be asked to approve it without any clear idea of the actual tax structure that would be imposed," Hibbard said.

"And furthermore, if this amendment were approved, graduation could be applied to any type of future state or local tax measured in any way by income."

The state Constitution currently prohibits graduated income taxes but Gov. Milton J. Shapp says changing that provision is one of the chief aims of his administration.

Last summer the legislature passed a 3.5 per cent graduated income tax which was later declared unconstitutional.

McGovern reveals ITT paid no tax

ITT's gift to GOP deducted from tax

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern said on nationwide television Sunday that Securities and Exchange Commission records show International Telephone and Telegraph Inc. deducted its $400,000 contribution to the Republican National Convention from its taxable income.

But later McGovern said the charge was based on statements by ITT officials before a Senate committee and the information is not included in SEC records. He called his television statement "an honest error."

McGovern, considered a front-runner in Tuesday's Wisconsin democratic presidential primary, also said SEC records show the conglomerate paid no federal income taxes in 1968, 1969 and 1970.

After the television appearance, McGovern's office issued a statement affirming McGovern's statement that SEC records show ITT paid no income tax for three years ending with 1970 but denying the SEC listing of its income tax statement for 1971, when the controversial $400,000 contribution was made.

A Senate committee is investigating allegations that ITT made the $400,000 contribution in exchange for a favorable settlement of antitrust charges against the firm. The SEC records were made public before the committee last week, McGovern said.

The statement issued by his office said:

"As to the payment of $400,000 for the Republican National Convention, that payment does not appear in the SEC reports. Senator McGovern's statement that it was included was based on statements by company officials that they considered it a proper business expense and that they would rely on the opinion of counsel to that effect, ... and would apply it as a deductible offset against (1971) income."

IRS to catch more cheaters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Internal Revenue Service commissioner Johnnie M. Walters said Sunday the government would catch more income tax cheaters this year than in 1971, even though tax agents have the extra burden of enforcing wage-price control guidelines.

Walters also said many professional tax preparation services "do a lousy job" and that the IRS was cracking down. With the deadline for filing 1971 returns less than two weeks away, business at these services is booming.

In a UPI Washington Window interview, Walters said that better management of IRS agents plus fancier computer techniques will make it tougher than ever this year for a taxpayer to hedge on his return and get away with it.

In addition to its regular workload, the administration has made the IRS the enforcement arm of the wage-price-rent controls and agency personnel have had the time-consuming and often exasperating job of interpreting the complex stabilization rules.

Another unexpected chore for the IRS is the government's new strategy of attempting to charge drug pushers with tax violations when they can't be caught with the actual goods.

Asked if this extra work didn't mean that fewer taxpayers would be subject to audit and prosecution this year, Walters replied, "No, we expect to catch more this year ... by better management of our manpower and by improving our procedures and our methods of auditing and examining returns."

Northampton students get $163,744 in assistance

BETHLEHEM — A total of $163,744 has been awarded to 285 students at Northampton County Area Community College for financial assistance through the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency.

Approximately 20 per cent of the full-time students at NCACC are receiving assistance through the state scholarship and student loan guarantee programs.

Kenneth R. Reeher, executive director of the PHEAA, said that 203 applications were processed for the scholarship program with awards being given to 149 students for a total value of $38,248; thus, providing assistance for 73 per cent of the students who apply. 40 per cent of the scholarship money went to students whose adusted gross family income ranged from $5000 to $7999. 27.5 per cent of the assistance went to students from families in the $8000 to $9999 category. Students from families in the $10,000 to $11,999 category received 17.4 per cent, and 16.1 per cent came from families earning less than $5000.

All of the students aided under the scholarship program were full-time students. Under the student loan guarantee program, 130 full-time students received loans totaling $122,346, and six part-time students received loans totaling $3150.

Who?) report the bump on their business is amazing . . . "The Selling of the President" rushed its premiere on Bdwy. a week early. Didn't have the money to stay away.

Ann Landers

Too much sex

Dear Ann Landers: I'd talk to some of the dudes about my problem, but they'd think I was bragging. I'm in need of help and I hope you won't think I'm putting you on. The problem: I'm a guy, 17 years old, senior in high school, and my sex life is killing me. I go with about 12 different girls and it's beginning to string me out. I'm like half dead. I have no time or energy left for sports which I used to enjoy a lot.

Lately I'm having a rough time getting out of bed in the morning. I eat right and take vitamins. There is nothing physically wrong with me. Don't suggest I drop a few chicks because I wouldn't know where to begin. I used to think this was a great routine but now I'm disgusted with myself and I'm beat. Any advice you can give me will be listened to.

Dragging My Caboose

Dear Drag: Think of your duty to History, Lothario. You are burning yourself out before your time and it just isn't fair to all the future dollies you haven't gotten around to yet. They will be denied your fabulous talents if you don't reduce the size of the harem.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 12 years old. My parents are very nice to other people but they are terrible to each other. I can't understand it. When we have company they talk very refined to one another but when nobody is around they are absolutely gross. Don't they know children have ears? How come they don't care what we think of them? I should think parents would consider their kids as more important than outsiders because they are supposed to teach us how to behave.

When they don't act decent we get upset. Sometimes when my dad yells I get frightened at what he might do. Most of the fighting goes on at the dinner table. It gives me a stomach ache. What should I do, Ann Landers?

Program avoids property

PEN ARGYL — The Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources has promised to stay away from land used by the Blue Mountain Consolidated Water Co. when it sprays for gypsy moths in the Pen Argyl area.

Henry Nichols of the state agency assured the water company "will be avoided" during the spraying.

Nichols has asked the water company to prepare a pinpoint map of the property before work is begun.

The letter came in response to one written to the commissioners by Hayden Pritchard, water company treasurer.

Pritchard said the company feared its reservoirs and other water sources would be contaminated by the spray.

Rock set scheduled at PVHS

BRODHEADSVILLE — The Light Company, a musical group comprised of three young men who "present music in the language of now," will appear in concert at 8 p.m., April 7 at Pleasant Valley High School.

Bill Hanlin, Dave Trout, and Bob Morley compose the musical group that performs selections of contemporary music that speaks to this generation about responsibility to life and to one's fellow man.

The Light Company has performed in churches, high schools, colleges, and clubs throughout the country.

"The assembly by The Light Company was one of the highlights of the year . . . all the more meaningful because it was in the language of now," said Slippery Rock High School about the group's performance there.

Tickets are $1.00 and can be purchased at the door.

PTA sponsors Book Fair

BRODHEADSVILLE — The Pleasant Valley Elementary P.T.A. will sponsor a book fair from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, in the Chestnuthill Elementary School, Brodheadsville.

Students and parents can browse and purchase from a wide variety of topics. Proceeds from the fair will help finance spring field trips for elementary students.

Consultant teaches course in production at Lehigh

BETHLEHEM — Prof. Robert G. Brown of Vernon, N.J., is serving as Alcoa Visiting Professor of Industrial Engineering at Lehigh University during the current academic year.

The professorship is one of 16 awarded by the Alcoa Foundation to that many colleges and universities in ten states under the Foundation's Engineering Professorship Program, which is designed to foster more contact between personnel from the academic and industrial communities.

Brown is currently self-employed as an independent consultant to government and industry in materials management systems design and implementation, inventory management, production planning, purchasing, physical distribution, and statistical forecasting.

At Lehigh, Brown is teaching an undergraduate course in production control to potential chemical engineers, electrical engineer physicists, and mathematicians. He is also teaching a graduate seminar in operations research.

He is widely known in the field of production control, and has served extensively as a consultant and as a teacher at various institutions. He has also written a number of books, the most recent being "Management Decisions for Production," published by Dryden Press in 1971 in conjunction with a book of readings titled "Source Book in Production Management."

Police report not worth secrecy

That "confidential" report on the state of police protection in Monroe and Pike Counties cost nothing to prepare, officials say. It's just as well, because that's what the report is worth.

Apparently the Northeast Regional Council of the Governor's Justice Commission took a superficial look at police departments, where they exist, in the area and decided that was enough. What they found was what anyone on any street corner in either county could have told them — that police protection, for the most part, is below par in terms of numbers.

There are exceptions to that generality, notably in the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg-Stroud Township area, but for the most part the report was unfortunately too true. But that the council, alarmed as it was by the lack of police protection, inexplicably failed to make any recommendations. That renders the report virtually valueless.

Perhaps recognizing the weakness of the report was what led the council to request it be kept confidential. The reason the council gave for keeping a lid on the report, according to Monroe County Commission chairman Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, was that the council feared it could be dangerous if it fell into the wrong hands.

The fallacy in that reasoning is that the capabilities of area police departments, or lack of them, have been chronicled many times in the past by The Record. We have examined overall police coverage in detail, and just three weeks ago, probed the lack of police protection in the West End of Monroe County, and the opinion of residents there on the situation. (We came to the same conclusion as the council's report: residents don't want a regional police force because they feel they can't afford it.)

In our view, the council's report is just another affirmation of the need for a regional or county-wide police force to fill in the gaps when the state police aren't able to provide the coverage needed. It doesn't provide much more, except for a humurous insight into the workings of the official mind: When you do a bad job, cover it up by marking it "confidential".

Milk price cut coming?

The Milk Marketing Board is coming to Scranton April 20, and indications are it may reduce milk prices as it proposed to do Thursday in the western part of the state.

It's a break the consumer could use. Local shoppers now are paying as much as 30 cents more for a gallon of milk than they would at any comparable market in New Jersey.

The ironic twist there is that much of the milk sold in the near regions of our sister state is supplied by Pennsylvania dairies. At hearings conducted last week on the milk price issue, one eastern Pennsylvania supplier said he could sell his milk in New Jersey at the lower price and still make a comfortable profit.

The milk board is acting under pressure from consumers and Gov. Milton J. Shapp, and that doesn't sit well with the board's former chairman, Lin Huber, who had kept milk prices up for years before the governor dabbled for a while with the thought of dismissing him.

Industry representatives, predictably, were angered by the proposal to cut prices by eight cents in 13 western counties. That's understandable: no one likes to have their profit margin sliced. But we are in a troublesome economic time. Workers and businessmen are being asked to make fiscal sacrifices to stem the inflationary tide and ease the increasing cost burden on the consumer.

In this sort of atmosphere, it hardly seems reasonable for the milk industry to balk at reducing prices in Pennsylvania, when it is selling the same commodity at already reduced prices in neighboring states. And even with the proposed price cuts, Pennsylvanians still will be paying more for milk than their over-the-line neighbors.

We hope the milk board and its new chairman, Harry Kapleau, aren't intimidated by the milk industry at a rebuttal hearing set up for April 11. We in the northeast region could use a similar price cut proposal when the board comes to Scranton to review the milk price situation here.

Peril in blood

The tragedy of blook bank. Tainted blood is creating a national peril. Doctors and scientists are increasingly worried but very little has come out into the open.

Those who know the facts are beginning to question both the efficiency and safety of blood bank practices.

One revealing piece of evidence: Thousands of people die of hepatitis yearly after being injected with viral-tainted blood.

Where does such tainted blood come from? It comes primarily from paid donors who are alcoholics, drug addicts and prisoners. Among these categories hepatitis is found to be 10 to 70 times more common than in the population generally.

Surveys show that hepatitis in the blood of paid donors occurs in about 30 cases per thousand as contrasted with 3 cases per thousand in blood from volunteers.

By the most conservative estimate there are 3,500 hepatitis deaths per year from blood transfusions, but many doctors are convinced that the real total is closer to 35,000 a year.

What can be done about it? In one of the few articles appearing on this subject, Constance Holden writing in Science, official magazine of the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science, cites three main causes:

Commercialism, lack of co-ordination among agencies and flimsy state and federal regulations. One possible answer: a total volunteer system of blood donation.

Social violence declining. A new level of calm is evident in every section of the country. In all the preconvention campaigning there is nothing near to the 1968 disorder and disruption.

It is also reflected on campuses. A case in point:

California law now classifies 18-to-20-year-olds as adults. Five young men under 21 were recently drawn to serve as potential jurors in the highly charged Angela Davis conspiracy case. They asked to be excused on the ground it would interfere with their studies.

Democratic candidates becoming more personal. The front-runners are beginning to attack each other and the rear-runners are attacking the front-runners.

Recent example: Muskie is now talking out after Hubert as "promise-a-day Humphrey." McCarthy, who has been criticizing all the Democrats except McGovern, has now got around to dismissing McGovern as "fourth choice" among the liberals.

Women's rights — after 49 years of delay. The first state to do so, Hawaii, ratified the amendment guaranteeing equal rights for women in two hours, and the other necessary 37 ratifications will be forthcoming.

A majority of voters today are women, and male politicians do not dare vote against them.

Things won't be the same. Obviously, discrimination in divorce laws, property rights and pensions will be struck down. But there will be much more.

What liberations most women want. Apart from the Women's Lib extremists, most women want equal pay for equal work, equal job opportunities in industry, politics and government and equal chance for promotion. To the 32 million working women in the United States, this is simple justice — and a necessity.

One example: College-educated men are paid nearly double the rate of college-educated women.

A novel proposal on busing. If some busing is temporarily necessary to help improve the quality of low-income neighborhood schools, here is a new solution.

Instead of busing the pupils, why not bus the teachers? This would reduce the need for busing by at least 90 per cent.

Invited to White House

WASHINGTON — All sorts of people and groups are invited to the White House these days. Recent invitees were 200 folks connected with auto racing. I knew the President liked sports, but I didn't know one of them was car racing. (However there's no truth to the rumor that he's going to use the south lawn as a drag strip).

Anyway, auto racing has been around since 1895, although this was the first time in the 76 years that it has been honored by the President. Who knows, maybe next month they'll get him to drive the pace car that starts the race at Indianapolis: it would be like throwing out the first ball on opening day.

A friend of mine, Martin Donahue, was one of the President's racing guests and we chatted shortly after he returned from the White House reception. Mr. Donahue is the president of Castrol Oils, the firm that sponsored last year's Indianapolis winner, Al Unser.

"Did you know that the rear-view mirror, radial tires, roll bars and dozens of other features were all first used in racing cars?" he said. He added that the President hailed the auto-racing business for its contributions to road safety.

My conversations with Donahue have to stay on this basic level, because I know nothing whatever about auto racing. My only brushes with it came while watching actor James Garner make "Grand Prix" and once when I was a boy I tried to make a soap box derby racer, but gave up. So all chat about gear ratios, compression, torque, etc., is lost on me.

One of the drivers on the Castrol team is Oscar Koveleski, a rather Hamboyant gentleman from Scranton, Pa. According to Mr. Donahue, Koveleski recently formed the "Polish Racing Drivers Club of America," with himself as president, of course.

"Don't laugh," Mr. Donahue said, "one sports magazine named Koveleski as 'Polish Racing Driver of the Year'" The fact that the editor's name is Kovacik probably had nothing to do with it."

One of the reasons that so many things are tested at Indianapolis, Donahue said, is because it's estimated that the 500 miles of fiendish driving there is the equivalent to 50,000 miles on the family buggy. "We tested GTX oil in the lab," he said, "but Indianapolis was the supreme test."

After I left Donahue, I went out and got into my own car. It's only two years old and already it looks like the loser at Indianapolis. My philosophy is, if I can't stop, I aim for something cheap to hit.

The Pennsylvania Story

Successful issues

HARRISBURG — While the national media paid scant heed to last month's Illinois presidential preference primary, Pennsylvania analysts see signs that the issues that Ed Muskie used to fire up voters for his victory there will be equally successful — in Pennsylvania.

After all, they point out, Pennsylvania and Illinois are similar states in many ways: both are major industrial states influenced strongly by one or two major metropolises: Chicago in Illinois and Philadelphia and Pittsburgh in Pennsylvania. Both have heavy smalltown and rural populations.

Thus, according to word from Muskie headquarters here in Harrisburg, one issue which will be highlighted in Pennsylvania will be Senator Muskie's little-known record on farm affairs. Voters in rural Illinois responded well once they knew how he stood on farm issues and, his backers here say, there is no reason why the Democrats among Pennsylvania's more than 100,000 farm families should not react favorably once they learn that you don't have to be from the Midwest to understand the farmer's problems.

Family Farm Act

Voters in Illinois learned that Senator Muskie, whose small-town upbringing in Maine was not unlike the surroundings of many Pennsylvania small towns, is co-sponsor of the proposed Family Farm Act which would restrict non-farming corporations from driving little farmers out of business.

He went even further in Illinois in his proposals to protect the family farm. The Maine Democrat called for a moratorium on new farm purchases by big business. The moratorium would apply to businesses with substantial non-farm assets and sales and it would last throughout a full-scale investigation of the corporate takeover of agriculture by the Federal Trade Commission.

In Pennsylvania, the vast majority of farming is conducted on the family level although there is increasing evidence of "corporate farming" — especially in the cannery crop areas such as South Central Pennsylvania's orchardlands. Some of the United States' largest corporations — including one tobacco and cigarette company — are buying up orchards in this area.

Muskie's other major new proposal is to prevent corporations from using their farm investments as tax shelters. Specifically, the Muskie plan would establish a limit of $15,000 for income tax deductions of farm losses against non-farm income.

Tax loophole

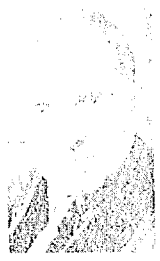
An idea of the size of this tax loophole, Washington tax experts estimate that limiting the write-off to $15,000 per corporation would produce $100 million in additional federal taxes each year. Equally important, it would remove the incentive for the corporation to undersell the family farmer by pricing commodities below the cost of production.

Senator Muskie also has been voicing his opposition to the present practice of taxing farm land at its supposed "market" or speculative value. Instead, "tax reformer" Muskie proposes that farmland be taxed on the basis of yield. Thus, mountain land which can produce a crop of lumber only once every 40 years would be taxed at a much lower rate than rich bottom land which is producing heavy grain or truck crops.

Neither would be taxed at the rate they would bring if they were valued for tax purposes at the $1,000 to $5,000 per acre such land parcels might bring if they were located near communities and sold off for residential building.

The Democratic presidential hopeful also is sponsoring a bill to increase milk price supports to 90 per cent of parity and another to require the Secretary of Agriculture to make advance payments "immediately following signup" of 50 per cent of the program payments for wheat and food grain programs.

What it adds up to is that two of Muskie's opponents who thought they had the farm vote to themselves — McGovern of South Dakota and Humphrey of Minnesota — will have to wrestle for it with a man from Maine who is ready to fight for the farmer's support on the issues rather than what part of the country he represents.



Jeffrey Hart

Invisible president

A few years ago, Hugh Kenner, probably our leading literary critic, published a book called T. S. Eliot: The Invisible Poet. His point was that the true Eliot was an elusive entity, hidden among the variety of other voices speaking in his poetry.

Politically considered, President Nixon has a comparable invisibility, his policies characteristically wrapped in baffling ambiguity.

The New York Times cannot find Nixon. Toward the end of January, in a major editorial, the Times proclaimed joyfully that Nixon had finessed the conservatives — that, indeed, Nixon had killed conservatism. His China policy, his economic controls, his espousal of a guaranteed annual income had cut the ground from under the conservative position. You could not read that editorial otherwise than as saying that Nixon is a sort of moderate liberal hero.

Changeable times

But no. Last week the Times editorialized on the decision of Rep. Ogden Reid of New York to switch to the Democratic Party: "That Mr. Reid has decided he can no longer stay in the Party is graphic evidence of how far to the right it has drifted under the leadership of President Nixon . . . Still short of his 47th birthday, he brings to the Democrats another future leader of great decency, dedication and talent." As evidence of the reactionary character of the Nixon Administration, so reactionary as to be intolerable to a man of decency, dedication and talent, the Times cited the Nixon Administration's policies on civil liberties, race, child care and Vietnam.

If you want to find Nixon, don't ask the Times for help.

And indeed it is not at all easy to smoke him out when you examine his major policy initiatives.

Consider his recent move on the busing problem. On the one hand, he was denounced by the civil rights establishment, by the liberal Democratic candidates and by the media for trying to roll back Brown vs. the Board of Education and for sneakily trying to repeal the Constitution.

But on the other hand, scrutinizing the fine print of the Nixon proposals, many conservatives noted that the so-called Equal Opportunity Act contains language inviting the most liberal interpretation. It advises officials to pursue "equal opportunity" by the "creation or revision of attendance zones," the "construction of new schools," the "establishment of magnet schools or educational parks," and so on. How, wondered conservatives, does that language jibe with Nixon's televised denunciation of social engineers and abstract planners?

Turning elsewhere, did Nixon or did he not sell out Taiwan? From the text of the communique and from the surrounding Administration statements you can argue either side of that question.

Is Nixon winding down the war, or winding it up? In National Review, James Burnham argues that abandonment of Vietnam has all but been consummated. But I. F. Stone in the New York Review of Books and Noam Chomsky, the MIT professor and New Left theoretician, claim that Nixon has only mechanized the war, and, while withdrawing our troops, may be on the verge of winning it.

Does Nixon support the controversial Family Assistance Plan? Ronald Reagan says Nixon does not. James Buckley says Nixon does not. Even Abe Ribicoff says Nixon does not. Elliot Richardson and Ron Zeigler say he does. Nixon says he does. But legislators report little Administration pressure to pass the scheme.

And so it goes. On defense the signals are similarly mixed. Nixon got Safeguard, but not his requested speed-up in the new long-range underwater missile system.

One test for sugar

What does the term "pre-diabetes" mean?

Does it mean that there is no doubt that I will become a diabetic when I am older? I am now 32 years old, and have no symptoms of any kind.

The diagnosis of "pre-diabetic" was made on the basis of one test for sugar.

Mr. T. W., Mich.

Dear Mr. W.:

"Pre-diabetes" is a tentative diagnosis based on blood sugar studies that are not quite high enough to indicate specific presence of diabetes.

Some people who are highly overweight may show an increased amount of sugar or a "mild intolerance" to glucose or sugar in the blood. Occasionally, this is seen in unusual cases of pregnancy.

There is great significance to the diagnosis. It does not necessarily mean that you will inevitably develop and need treatment for diabetes. Actually the diagnosis may be of great importance because there may be preventive steps that will avoid any progression of the condition.

One of the hopes of modern medicine is to flush out of hiding the pre-diabetic, who by family history may be a candidate for this disorder. Only in this way can active steps be taken to keep diabetes in control.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

"It takes a heap o livin in a house to make it home," Edgar Guest once piped, and I'll have to admit that since I've had my first overnight guest and the birds have found my feeder, I feel much cosier.

But thinking of the Edgar Guest poem reminded me of my Guest Period when I thought he was the greatest poet ever lived, especially since my book of his poems was illustrated with Rockwellian type pictures of sentimentalized things I could relate to.

Even now I can remember how indignant I got at the people who didn't consider his work peotry at all — just rhymed verse. "Well, I like it," I'd retort defiantly.

Later, I, too, learned to look down my nose at sentimentality and "calendar" art and cliche responses and to appreciate more profound expressions of deeper emotions.

But there are times when I wonder if I wasn't right in the first place. Especially when I see busy shoppers stop and stand bemused leafing through the big volume of Norman Rockwell pictures.

There is a universallity about little emotions as well as big ones, and a lot of real sentiment filtering through a gloss of sentimentality.

And when artists or poets, in their efforts to avoid the banal and the obvious, get so esoteric that ordinary people don't understand what they're trying to express what price art?

The Slim Gourmet

Use Easter eggs

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Jellybeans and chocolate bunnies are for eating; Easter eggs are for admiring! "Anyway, Mommy likes eggs —she'll eat them!"

If that's the Easter Week scene in your house you'll appreciate any recipe that disguises low-calorie, high-protein hard-cooked eggs as something more secretive than yet-another-egg-salad-sandwich! Especially when the dish is so spectacular you'd make it even if you didn't have all those painted eggs to get rid of!

The dish is Veal Rollettes, a specialty of my neighbor, Mary Verni.

Mary is a magnificent Italian beauty who serves up the most magnificant dinners to a magnificent family of seven children, all the while keeping a magnificent family of seven children, all the while keeping a magnificent house and a magnificent size 9 figure! None of the Vernis has a weight problem, despite all that wonderful cooking. Their fondness for veal could be part of the reason. Around 40 calories an ounce. Veal is the leanest, lowest-caloried meat there is!

For this receipt, slender slices of tender veal are filled with a savory stuffing of chopped eggs spiced with ham, onion and seasonings. The eggs add a special golden color and flavor to the filling, but your guests will make a guessing game out of figuring out what the "exotic" filling is.

MARY'S VEAL ROLLETTES
(only 225 calories)

1½ pound thinly-sliced veal.
3 thin slices lean cooked ("boiled") ham.
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped fine.
½ cup minced onion.
2 tablespoons dried parsley flakes.
4 tablespoons Italian-seasoned bread crumbs.
3 tablespoons tomato sauce (or catsup).
1 tablespoon olive oil.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
salt and pepper.

Pound the veal thin; cut it into six equal slices and set aside. Mince the ham with a sharp knife (first trim away any fat). Mix the ham, eggs, onion, parsley, bread crumbs and tomato sauce together. Spread the filling mixture evenly among the six slices. Roll up and fasten with toothpicks. Moisten each rollette with a mixture of lemon and oil and place in a covered baking dish. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 50 to 60 minutes, or until tender. Serve with fresh parsley and lemon wedges. Serves six.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠ !	Dble
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

Opening lead king of hearts.

Bobby Goldman, a member of the Dallas Aces who have now won two world championships in a row for the United States, is a straight down the middle player who almost never gets fancy.

But when the occasion justifies it, Bobby is willing to step out of character temporarily — as he did in this deal played against Nationalist China in the 1970 Bermuda Bowl championship staged in Stockholm.

He was East and responded a spade after his partner, Billy Eisenberg, had opened the bidding with a heart. Certainly the conditions for this unusual bid were ideal, since North-South were vulnerable and it seemed probable that the Chinese could somehow or other make a game — probably in spades.

But the Chinese pair, Cheng and Hsaio, were not to be denied. Goldman's effort to talk them out of game was unsuccessful and they quickly got to four spades in the manner shown, making ten tricks for a score of 620 points.

Oddly enough, when the other Chinese pair played the hand, sitting East-West, the bidding started exactly the same way. But it ended differently when they wound up playing the hand at five clubs doubled. The bidding — with Tai and Huang performing exceedingly well for China — went:

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠ !	2 ♠
Dble	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
4 ♣	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
5 ♣	Dble

Tai went down two — 300 points — losing a spade, two diamonds and a club, and the upshot was that the Chinese team gained 320 points on the deal. So while neither psychic bid by East stopped the opponents from arriving at four spades, the Chinese pair at the second table managed to find a good landing spot at five clubs doubled.

Mrs. Beulah M. Mayers

HANOVER — Mrs. Beulah M. Mayers, 78, formerly of Littlestown, Md., died March 25 at the Golden Age Nursing Home, Hanover.

Born in Carroll County, Maryland, she was a daughter of the late George and Barbara (Bemiller) Backman and the widow of Elmer J.H. Mayers.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Charles Siglin, Cresco, Pa., Mrs. Mirian Brown, Westminster, Md., Mrs. Floyd McNulty, Taneytown, Md., and Mrs. Frances Sites, Hanover, Pa.; a sister, Mrs. Herman Mikesell, Taneytown, Md.; nine grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held March 28 at the Little Funeral Home, Littlestown, Md., with the Rev. W.C. Karns officiating. Interment was in Oak Lawns Memorial Gardens, Gettysburg, Pa.

Examiner trainee jobs open

HARRISBURG — The State Civil Service Commission will accept applications until April 14 for insurance company examiner trainee and for beginning-level claim settlement agent.

Insurance company examiner trainees are employed by the State Insurance Department at an annual salary ranging from $8,163 to $10,432. Applicants must be recent college graduates with major course work in business administration or economics.

This is the final opportunity for candidates interested in these positions. The current examination program will terminate April 14.

Applicants for claim settlement agent positions must be college graduates with at least one year experience in consumer credit, insurance adjustment, real estate management, law, social service, or public contact work in the collection of delinquent accounts or debts.

Annual salary range is $8,163 to $10,432.

Applications and further information on both positions may be obtained from State Civil Service Commission offices in Harrisburg, Pittsburgh or Philadelphia.

Write to know

The people in The Pocono Record circulation area have a "Write to Know" — and The Record will try to provide the answers in the "Write to Know" column. The column, designed to answer any questions or solve any problems (consumer, government or anything else) will appear every Monday on the first page of the second section. Send all questions to "Write to Know," The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Questions should be in writing and signed. No telephone calls, please.

Q. — I am writing in regard to television reception for the senior citizens at Avon Court, East Stroudsburg. There is one antenna for 41 units. They can get three stations — six, three and ten. The reception is so bad they can barely watch it. They pay $1.50 per month to the Monroe County Housing Authority for this privelege. They have complained for months and nothing has been done to correct it. I have inquired about cable service, but have been told they must use the service supplied by the housing authority. I would "like to know" what can be done to give these people better service.

D.M., Stroudsburg

A. — We don't think you will appreciate this answer. Unless outside interference can be cut down, the people in Avon Court appear to be doomed to poor television reception. Interference is a common complaint and poor reception is the rule along Day Street and Broad Street in East Stroudsburg. Housing authorities have tried to have Federal Communication Commission officials in Philadelphia check out the problem, but FCC will not respond. Some people in the area have their own antennas, but that is no help. Cable television is an answer in some cases, but for the federal project it is considered cost-prohibitive. It is not the equipment in the project because that equipment is checked every 90 days. What may have to be done is a tracing job to track the sources of interference. It is not likely such information will be volunteered by those creating the difficulty.

Q. — We would like to know if there is a discount rate for high school students for admission to the movies. It has been rumored that if a student presents his or her student identification card at the local theaters they receive reduced student rates. Could you please tell us if this is true and what schools it pertains to if it is. If not, please inform us on the possibilities of starting such a discount system. We feel movie admission prices are far too expensive for the average teenager's budget and that something should be done about the situation.

A.S., East Stroudsburg

A. — Your rumor is partially correct. Student identification cards will give you a reduced rate at the Sherman I Theater most Friday and Saturday nights. An official identification card from all area high schools will reduce admission from $1.50 to one dollar. A possible exception to the rule would be an occassional restricted picture at the Sherman I on the weekend. The comment you make on the costs being too expensive for teenagers relates to the reason reduced rates are not available at all theaters simultaneously. It seems theater owners also have budgets.

Q. — We have a musical group and we've been attempting to record some of our music in my basement. The acoustics are really bad and we tried to find a place to buy some sound proofing material but it's very expensive and has to be specially ordered. Is there any place locally where we can get the material required to sound proof a small section of my basement — cheap!

D.V., Analomink

A. — No. If you're a do-it-yourself bug there is a simple answer, though. Old egg cartons will do the job if they are nailed or glued to the walls within the area you plan to record in. Just place the flat side of the cartons against the wall and cover the entire room that way, including the ceiling. It's a very good method to sound proof a room — and it's cheap.

Q. — Since the cyclamate ban, Saccharin is the only non-sugar sweetner left on the market. Being a diabetic myself, I am concerned over my use of this in fairly large amounts after recently reading it may cause cancer. Do you have any information on this?

F.G., East Stroudsburg

A. — The federal Food and Drug Administration has limited the use of Saccharin until it has the results of several experiements done with rats in which a few, fed enormous amounts of Saccharin over two years, showed signs of bladder tumors. If these tumors prove to be cancerous, the FDA will be required to ban Saccharin.

Four area residents killed in accidents

STROUDSBURG — Four area residents died over the Easter holiday in traffic accidents — none of which occured in Monroe County.

Blaine B. Hahn, 20, and Vernon S. Rothrock, 19, of both of Middle Village, Mount Bethel, were killed early Saturday morning in a one car crash on Interstate Route 495 — The Capital Beltway — a short distance from the nation's capital while returning from a Florida vacation.

Injured in the accident were John C. Lang, of East Bangor, and Dennis J. Jones, of Mount Bethel.

Jones, who was driving the ill-fated vehicle at the time of the accident, was flown by helicopter to the University Hospital in Baltimore where he is reported in fair condition. Lang is also reported in fair condition at Prince Georges Medical Center in Prince Georges County, Md.

Maryland State Police said the Jones vehicle was traveling west on I-495 at approximately 7:35 a.m. Saturday when it went out of control and crashed into a steel girder supporting an exit sign. State police are still investigating the accident and have yet to determine what caused the fatal crash.

Two elderly Carbon County residents died Saturday night after being struck by a car while walking to bingo along Canal Street (Legislative Route 13010) near Lehighton. State police later arrested a 55 year-old Weissport man and charged him with hit-and-run in the dual deaths.

Earl Heiney, 75, of Lehighton R.D. 3 was pronounced dead on arrival at Gnaden Huetten Hospital, Lehighton. His companion, Emma Ellen Bobst, 60, also of Lehighton R.D. 3, died approximately 30 minutes later in the hospital's emergency room after failing to respond to treatment.

George Hunsicker was arrested about one hour after the accident at his home in Weissport by Pennsylvania State Police from the Lehighton barracks. He was arraigned before Lehighton District Magistrate Lewis Williams and released on his own recognizance until his preliminary hearing, set for 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

Carbon County Coroner Robert Deibert, of Lehighton, said Heiny died of a broken neck while Miss Bobst succumbed to massive head injuries. Both were thrown over a guardrail near the Lehigh Canal and only a bush on the canal's bank prevented both from rolling into the water.

Two New Jersey residents escaped serious injury Sunday afternoon when their car went out of control on I-80 east near the Tannersville exit, flipped over the guardrail and landed on its roof.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Way, of Carlstad, N.J. were treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County for undisclosed injuries.

Police said the car was traveling east in the left lane when it veered onto the medial strip and then back across both lanes before it struck the guardrail and flipped over. A damage estimate to the car was not immediately made available.

Robert B. Smith, Stroudsburg R.D. 5, and two of his young sons escaped serious injury early Saturday when he swerved to avoid hitting a deer on LR 45075 in Paradise Township, just north of Rt. 940, and hit a tree.

Police estimate the damage to his auto at $1,200.

Funeral services for Blaine B. Hahn, killed in the auto accident near Washington, D.C., will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday from the Reed Funeral Home, Johnsonville, Pa., with Rev. John Godocik and Charles Cummings officiating. Interment will be in the Centerville Cemetery, Stone Church.

Hahn was born in Bethlehem, the son of Warren and Mary (Bond) Hahn and a 1970 graduate of Bangor High School.

He was a member of the Portland-Mount Bethel Community Presbyterian Church.

In addition to his parents, he is suvived by his sister, Mary Lea Heller, Stroudsburg R.D. 5, and his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Lea Hahn, Middle Village, Mount Bethel.

Viewing will be between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Tuesday.

TIRAC backs state board's proposed sewage rules

STROUDSBURG — The Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council (TIRAC) has expressed its support of the state Environmental Quality Board's proposed sewage regulations on the basis they would force vacation home developers to cluster and use sewerage treatment facilities.

The regulations, amendments to the state's Sewage Facilities Act, tie together sewage planning and the granting of permits and could lead to a slow-down or even halt new home construction.

They would require a community to have sewage treatment plan already in hand before permits for new home construction could be issued.

At a recent hearing on the regulations in Harrisburg, Thomas Klock, TIRAC director-secretary, told the board the ammendments, "if adopted and affirmatively enforced, would do much to correct a rapidly degenerating environmental situation" throughout the region.

He contended adoption of the ammendments would clear up "loopholes" in previous state regulations pertaining to on-site sewage disposal systems.

"In the past, local municipalities and counties which desired to protect the environment from inconsiderate land development practices were thwarted by state inability to follow through," Klock amplified.

"As a result, little heed is given anymore to the Pennsylvania Sewage Facilities Act. Strong state action would do much now to remove local frustrations and foster renewed trust that the state can and will act in the interests of environmental quality."

Pointing to what he termed "negligence on the part of some municipalities" to prepare and adopt official sewage disposal plans, Klock maintained, "Not allowing building to occur unless in compliance with an officially approved plan is the type of enforcement measure needed."

He stated the only "loophole" in the new regulations would be the degree of enforcement to be exercised and appealed to the board to meet the request of TIRAC's member counties for "strong enforcement."

"I am sure you will or are being barraged by the land developers with their cries that these new regulations will seriously curtail their practices or even force them out of business," he offered, suggesting as a solution a moratorium "to consider our past misuse of the land."

Klock stressed developers are continuing to subdivide lots in areas where soils have been declared unsuitable for on-site sewage disposal systems.

"Who's left with the problems in the end — the local residents and the state," he emphasized.

"If the developers would cluster instead of sprawl development and utilize a central system, much of the natural character would be retained. If anything, these regulations could bring about new development practices that could be far more appealing in the marketplace," he added.

During the hearing, Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, secretary of the state Department of Environmental Resources, said a community "would be under severe constraints not to build" if it couldn't quickly develop a treatment plan.

Douglas Blazey, a member of the Department's Strike Force, said the regulations would predominantly affect suburban and rural areas which are under development.

He said other changes in the regulations would give more control over subdivisions and permit control over sewage treatment holding tanks.

Raymond L. Howe, representing the Pennsylvania Vacation Land Developers Association, said vacation developments should be excluded from the regulations because the use of central sewer systems there is impractical.

E.S. band receives praise

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg High School band received three consecutive standing ovations during a weekend tour of western Pennsylvania.

Before a crowd of 300 music educators and students at the Mid-East Conference in Pittsburgh, the band was called "one of the finest in the state" by Dr. Donald McCathern, conference chairman.

Dr. Russell Getz, fine arts coordinator for the state education department, labeled the group "probably the best band in Pennsylvania." Getz presented John Casagrande, band director, with a plaque commemorating the performance.

Dr. Charles Bay, guest clarinet soloist, told the band "I've played this solo ("Fantasia and Rondo" by von Weber) in eight states with eight excellent high school bands and this is the finest band I've ever performed with."

"This band deserves more than local recognition."

County tax collectors' commissions up in '71

STROUDSBURG — Eleven of the 16 Monroe County tax collectors who have already filed their reports with the prothonotary's office show gains in their commissions for 1971.

John A. Kitchen, Stroudsburg, remains the highest paid collector with $12,918 in commissions, slightly more than in 1971. He collected $962,201 and listed $1,530.63 in expenses.

However, Harry W. Armitage, Stroud Township, remains the top collector reporting $1,273,095 collected. His commission, $12,173, was about $60 less than in 1970 and his expenses of $1,758.26 were up $157 from 1970.

Armitage had 7,402 taxables while Kitchen had 5,225.

Still Armitage earned less than Kitchen even though he collected about $360,000 more because Kitchen was paid $4,001 on a commission basis while Armitage got a fixed salary of $2,186 from the township.

Substantial increases in collections raised the commissions of Carol Schultz, Tunkhannock Township, $2,912; Ralph E. Dunlap, Tobyhanna Township, $2,420; and Donald C. Mader, Paradise Township, $2,176.

In 1970, rates were adjusted by the East Stroudsburg and Pocono Mountains School Districts, subsequently lowering collector's commissions in those districts.

Despite a March 1 deadline, reports have not yet been filed for Eldred and Smithfield Townships and the borough of Delaware Water Gap.

Alcohol refunds shared

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Eight Monroe County communities are sharing in a $1,450 refund in beer and liquor license fees, according to the state Liquor Control Board.

The amount breaks down as:

East Stroudsburg Borough, $200; with townships as Barrett, $200; Chestnuthill, $200; Jackson, $150; Middle Smithfield, $200; Paradise, $150; Tobyhanna, $200 and Tunkhannock, $150.

In Pike County, Blooming Grove Township gets $150 and Milford Township $150.

No strings are attached as to how the individual municipality may use the funds, which represent the entire license fee, the board said.

"It is hoped, however," a board spokesman commented, "that the money now being made available will encourage local police in cooperating with the board's enforcement officers."

Government workshop set

STROUDSBURG — A local government workshop sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 4 in the Stroud Township Municipal Building.

Bernard Giangiulio, of Camp Hill, and William Carroll, of the Pennsylvania State University, will discuss "Insurance" and "Employee Negotiation and Collective Bargaining."

Anti-Tocks petitions on their way

EAST STROUDSBURG — Petitions containing almost 800 signatures of registered voters in Monroe County who are opposed to construction of the Tocks Island dam have been forwarded to President Nixon and four other high level Washington officials.

The Stop Tocks Committee, comprised mainly of college students and area residents, has sent copies of the petition along with letters explaining their opposition to the dam to: William Ruckelshaus, Environmental Protection Agency administrator; Russell Train, Council on Environmental Quality chairman; Sen. John C. Stennis, Public Works Subcommittee chairman.

"These petitions, evidence of the desire of the people to have a voice in this important issue, were sufficient strength to have the referendum questions placed on the primary ballot in Monroe County," a committee spokesman said.

The April 25 referendum will include the questions, "Should the Tocks Island Dam be constructed?" and "If the Tocks Island dam is not constructed, should the land purchased be used for recreation or a public park?"

SPCA sets fund drive

STROUDSBURG — The Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will begin its annual appeal for funds April 2 and continue it through "Be Kind to Animals Week" which ends May 13.

The Commonwealth's largest humane society, the SPCA receives no tax funds, no federal or state support, and depends entirely on donations and bequests for operating funds.

The cost of running the five shelters which comprise the 104-year-old state SPCA increased 10.2 per cent in 1971 while income dropped, so $32,600 more was spent than taken in during the past year.

"We do not expect ever to make a profit, but it is obvious we can not continue spending $2,500 a month more than we take in," said J. Gibson McIlvain Jr. of Downingtown, the society's president.

"We hope everyone who has ever loved an animal will open his heart and his purse and give generously so we will not need to curtail services, so we can continue in the future as we have in the past, considering the animals' welfare first and the funds later."

During 1971, a total of 66,648 animals, an average of 182 each day, were brought to the state SPCA shelters. A total of 10,607 pets were adopted and 1,483 lost ones were reunited with their families, more than 39 animals going into homes every working day.

Anti-cruelty agents made 10,171 inspections and investigations. The education program, in its 46th year, reached 160,045 children in 296 schools, camps and day care centers, plus 8,127 who visited the shelters on 104 guided tours. Also, veterinarians treated 19,426 animals in the Society's clinic.

"In short, everything was up except money," claimed McIlvain.

Tax-deductible donations may be sent to the Pennsylvania SPCA, 350 E. Erie Ave., Philadelphia.

Hodges collapses, dies of heart attack

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Gil Hodges, one of the popular Brooklyn Dodger stars of the 1950's and current manager of the New York Mets, died Sunday of a heart attack just two days before his 48th birthday.

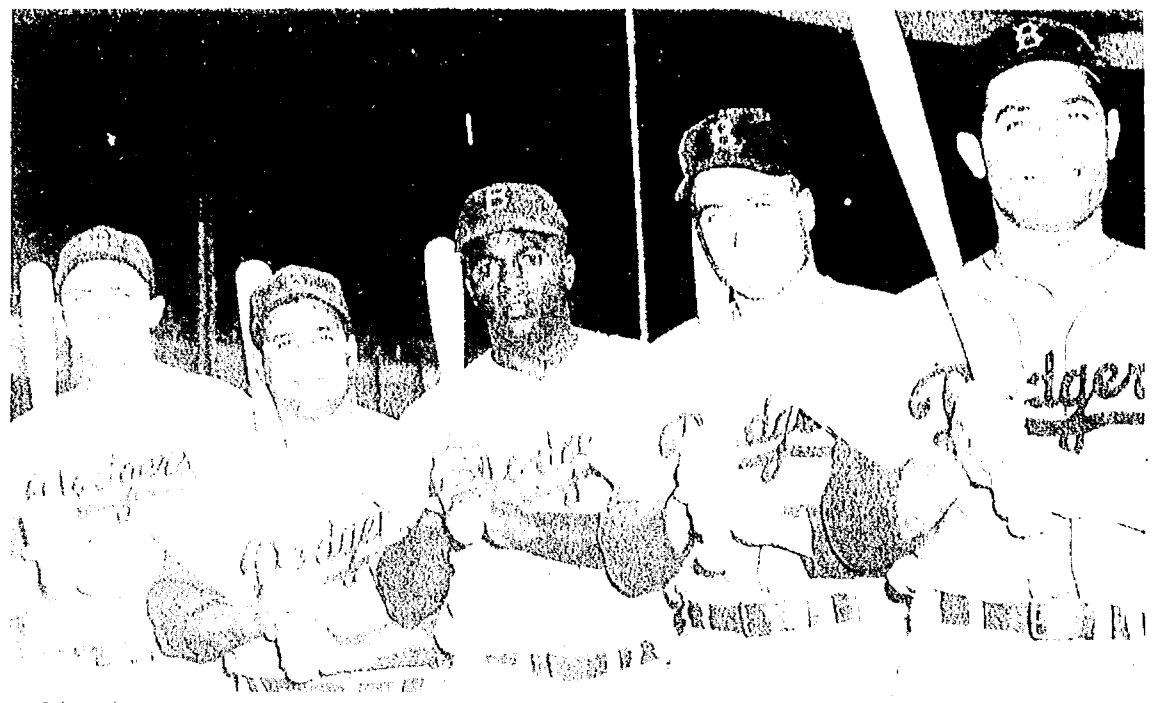
The soft-spoken native of Princeton, Ind., collapsed while walking from the clubhouse to his hotel after finishing a round of golf with Mets' coaches Eddie Yost, Joe Pignatano and Rube Walker. He was rushed to Good Samaritan Hospital at 5:25 p.m. EST but pronounced dead at 5:45 p.m.

Hodges is survived by his wife, Joan; three daughters, Barbara, Irene and Cindy; and a son, Gil Jr.

The Mets' said Hodges' body would be flown to New York today with funeral services scheduled for either Wednesday or Thursday.

The tragic death of the Mets' manager came just one day after the historical strike by the major league players which had caused all the teams to shut down their spring training facilities. Hodges had left the Mets' camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., Saturday and had stopped off at West Palm Beach for a day of golf before heading for his New York home.

It was the second heart attack suffered by Hodges in the last four years. In September of 1968 he collapsed during a game with the Braves at Atlanta and spent several months over the winter in convalescence. His doctor had reportedly been pleased with his physical progress over the last four years.



Gil Hodges was 27 years old when this picture of the power of the then Brooklyn Dodgers was taken in 1953. Besides Hodges, left, the awsome lineup included Roy Campanella, who remains in "serious" condition in a New York hospital, Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider and Carl Furillo.

(UPI Wirephoto)

Hodges' death also comes less than a week after former Dodger teammate Roy Campanella suffered an embolism. Campanella is still in serious condition in a New York hospital with a blood clot on the lung.

"It's hard to imagine," said another ex-teammate, Hall of Famer Jackie Robinson. "First Campy, now this. It makes you kind of think and wonder. It came as such a shock. He seemed on the upgrade after suffering his first heart attack. There was no talk about anything like this. It's shocking and saddening. I feel a great deal for the family."

One of the most feared sluggers in the National League during his heyday with the Dodgers, Hodges' major league career spanned 18-years from 1947-63 during which he hit 370 home runs, batted .273 and drove in 1,274 runs.

He spent all but two of those years with the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers and was the All-Star first baseman on six occasions. His powerful bat and golden glove helped the Dodgers win seven pennants and two world championships.

Hodges established a National League record of 14 grand slam home runs during his career and he equalled the all-time major league record of four home runs in a game on Aug. 31, 1950. In seven consecutive seasons, from 1949 through 1955, he drove in over 100 runs and he hit 30 or more homers in six of eight consecutive seasons.

The Dodgers placed Hodges in the expansion draft in 1961 and he was acquired by the Mets, who used his popular name as a drawing card for two seasons. He played a total of only 65 games for the Mets in 1962-63 and was traded to the Washington Senators for outfielder Jimmy Piersall on May 22, 1963.

Hodges replaced Mickey Vernon as the Senators' manager on that date and managed them through the 1967 seasons, during which time they improved steadily in the standings each year.

The Mets requested the Senators to release Hodges from his commitments in 1968 and Washington allowed him to join the Mets as manager. The Mets, a perennial cellar-dweller before Hodges arrived on the scene, finished ninth in his first year at the helm but stunned the baseball world the following year by winning the world championship.

The rise of the ragamuffin Mets to the world championship under Hodges' leadership was called by Time magazine "a fable for our time."

Since 1969, the Mets have finished no worse than third in the National League's eastern Division.

While Hodges' general dislike for conversation often rankled newsmen, he was thought of highly by his former teammates, and managers and opponents.

"It was guys like Hodges, Pee Wee Reese, Roy Campanella who made it easy for me by helping a rookie manager," said Dodger manager Walter Alston, who first took over as manager of the Brooklyn club in 1954. "Gil was that type of man. He never gave anyone any trouble; he was a great man on the field and off of it."

Casey Stengel, who was succeeded by Hodges as manager of the Mets, was another who was adamant in his respect for Hodges.

"He was a strong man. He had a strong character under a soft exterior," said Stengel. "But he had a way of getting along with his teammates and he did a good job...He had a terrific respect for standing up for the rights of himself and others."

Knicks gain 110-88 win; series tied at one each

NEW YORK (UPI)—Walt Frazier scored 30 points, Dave DeBusschere added 29 and New York effectively clogged the middle lane against Archie Clark Sunday night as the Knicks defeated the Baltimore Bullets, 110-88, to even their opening round NBA playoff series at one game apiece.

In addition to their torrid shooting, DeBusschere and Frazier outrebounded the entire Baltimore team in the first half as they combined for 16 caroms to only 14 for the Bullets.

Clark, who scored 38 points against New York Friday night, as he penetrated the New York defense at will, was held to 18 points. The Bullet guard hit on only six field goal attempts compared to 15 in the opener.

New York coach Red Holzman used a physological gambit as he started Earl Monroe. The ex-Bullet star was roundly booed in Baltimore in the opener Friday night and the resounding cheer he received at Madison Square Garden was a tremendous lift to Monroe.

Monroe led a six-point spurt early in the first period that gave New York a 9-3 lead and the Bullets could never recover.

Holzman, obviously nettled by Clark's middle lane driving in the first game, had the Knicks double team the Baltimore star and he was only held to six points in the first half.

Frazier, who scored 31 points in the series opener, continued to riddle the Baltimore defense with a 19 point effort in the first half, including 12 in the opening quarter when New York grabbed a 26-17 lead.

DeBusschere, who hit eight of nine baskets in the second half, and Frazier combined for 10 points in the opening minutes of the second period as New York went on a 16-3 surge to take their biggest lead of the game at 22 points, 42-20. The Knicks held a 56-38 margin at halftime.

Lakers open up three-game margin

CHICAGO (UPI)— Jerry West, firing 31 points with nine assists, led the Los Angeles Lakers to a 108-101 win over the Chicago Bulls in a nationally televised National Basketball Association playoff game Sunday afternoon.

It was the third straight win for the Lakers, champions of the NBA's Pacific Division, in their best of seven semifinal playoff series against Chicago, runnersup in the Mideast Division, and the decision gave Los Angeles a chance to sweep the series in four straight with another victory in the next game on the Bulls' floor Tuesday night.

The Lakers, outshot from the floor by the Bulls, cashed in at the free throw line, connecting on 28 of 31 gift attempts during the game including 18 straight leading to the finish. The Lakers didn't miss from the free throw line in the last half.

The Bulls, who hit 43 field goals, compared to 40 for the Lakers, made 15 of 22 free throw attempts. Yet they came from behind in the third period to tie the score at 58-58 and thereafter kept coming back to keep the Laker lead ranging from one to three points most of the way.

But each time Chicago came within a point, West seemed to hit from long range to take the pressure off the Lakers again.

Four of the Lakers' five starters scored in double figures as Gail Goodrich, who netted 11 of 12 free throw attempts, counted 23, Jim McMillian 19 and Wilt Chamberlain 16.

The Bulls' top scorer was guard Norm Van Lier with 22 while four other Bulls also were in double figures. Bob Weiss with 16, Bob Love with 15, Jerry Sloan 14 and Clifford Ray 12.

The Bulls were handicapped because center Tom Boerwinkle, who usually alternates with Ray, was out with an injured knee and both Chet Walker and Love were handicapped by leg injuries. At times the Bulls played without a center in order to give Ray a little rest.

The Lakers hit 51.9 per cent of their field goal attempts compared to 41 per cent for the Bulls, but Ray outrebounded Chamberlain 20-14 and the Bulls got 61 off the boards compared to 12 for Los Angeles.

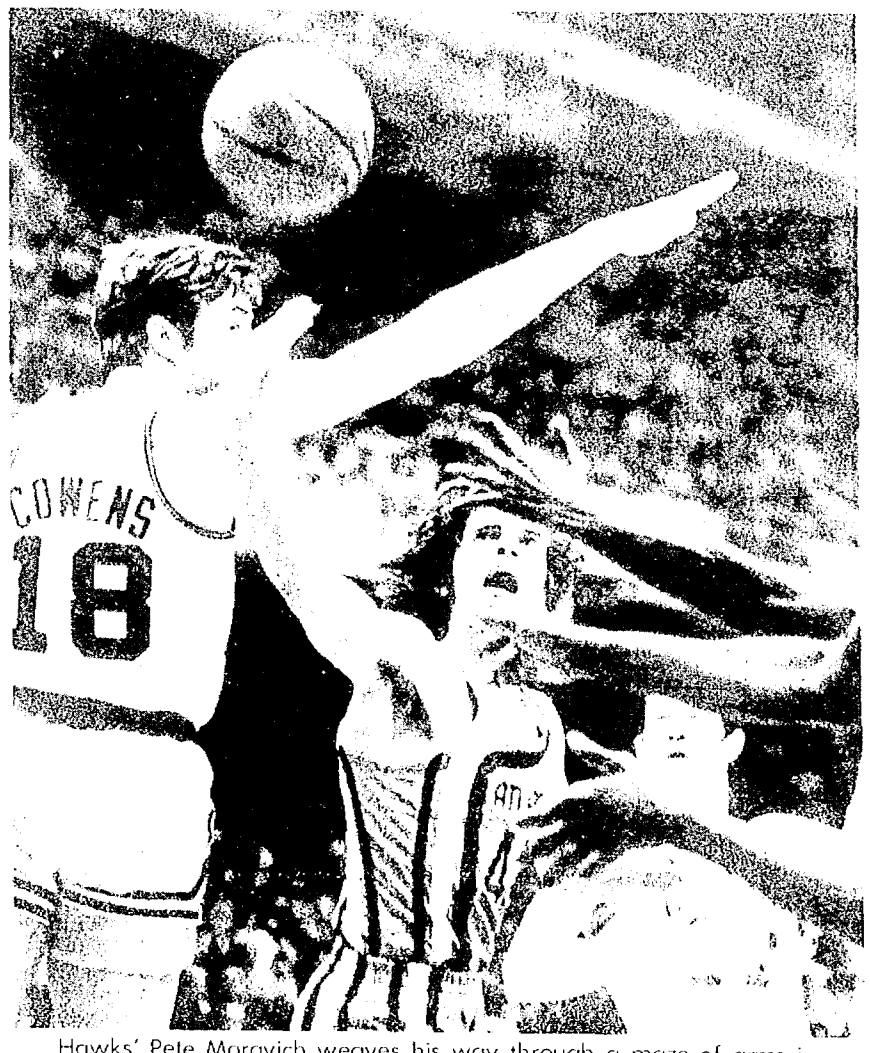
Wilkens quits job as coach

SEATTLE (UPI)—Seattle supersonics player-coach Lenny Wilkens said Sunday he had decided to give up the coaching job and continue as a player with the National Basketball Association team.

"I feel that I can continue to make a valuable contribution to the Seattle Supersonics as a player next season and in the future," Wilkens said. "And when the time comes for me to retire as a player, I hope to resume my coaching career."

Wilkens had served as player-coach of the Sonics for the past three years. The team had its finest year in the NBA this past season, dropping out of playoff contention only at the tail end of the season after several key men were lost through injuries.

Sonics President Sam Schulman said, "The original decision to have a player-coach was mine, and having mixed emotions regarding the situation, I left the final choice to Lenny as to which career he wished to pursue."



Hawks' Pete Maravich weaves his way through a maze of arms including that of Celtics' Dave Cowens to score during third quarter action of first round of Eastern NBA playoffs Sunday. Boston won the third game, 136-113.

Havlicek, White team up to lead Celtics to win

BOSTON (UPI)—John Havlicek and Jo Jo White combined for 60 points Sunday to guide the Boston Celtics to a 136-113 triumph over the Atlanta Hawks and a 2-1 lead in their National Basketball Association playoff series.

White connected for 15 points as the Celtics took a 33-27 first period lead and Havlicek added 13 markers during a 41 point second quarter spree that broke open the game. Boston led 74-53 at the half and put down a pair of second half rallies for the win.

Walt Bellamy and Pete Maravich sparked a third period rally for the visitors as the Celts went cold in their shooting. They teamed for 17 points as the Hawks cut the lead to 86-78.

However, Havlicek scored three baskets, White chipped in a basket and a free throw and Artie Williams tossed in a pair of foul shots to put Boston way out front to stay.

In the fourth quarter Maravich scored nine more points and Lou Hudson picked three shots to cut Boston's lead to 108-100 before Williams and Havlicek scored 10 points to insure the victory.

Maravich, showing no affects from the mononucleosis that sidelined him for more than a month during the last part of the season, led all scorers with 37 points while Havlicek led the winners with 31 and White had 29.

Archer wins Greensboro Open on second playoff hole

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI) — Big George Archer defeated Tommy Aaron on the second hole of a sudden death playoff Sunday to win the $200,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

Archer, at 6-feet-6 the tallest player on the pro tour, and Aaron finished the regulation 72 holes tied at 12-under-par 272.

Arnold Palmer, who triple-bogeyed the par 3, 16th hole, was grouped at 273, a stroke off the pace, with J. C. Snead, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Dave Stockton.

Three strokes back of the leaders were Australian Bruce Crampton, who posted a final round 73 after leading through the second and third rounds, veteran Julius Boros and Jacksonville Open winner Tony Jacklin.

Lee Trevino had a one-under-70 for the day, and wound up in a group at 280.

Archer, a former ranchhand at Gilroy, Calif., captured the Los Angeles Open by beating Aaron and Dave Hill in an 18-hole playoff earlier this year.

He had an unimpressive 70 in the opening round, added a 68 in Saturday's rain-delayed second round and then put together 66-68 rounds over the final 36 holes Sunday.

He collected five birdies, two on 40-foot putts, against only two bogeys in the afternoon round in chilly, 40-degree weather at the Sedgefield Country Club course.

Aaron had rounds of 67 Sunday after opening with a par 71 and adding a 67 Saturday.

During the afternoon round, the affable Georgian had three bogeys but five birdies and an eagle on the par 5, 14th hole when he placed a four-iron shot within four feet of the cup and made his putt.

Palmer went 14-under with back-to-back birdies on the back nine, but his two-stroke margin was short-lived.

He hit into a creek that runs across the 16th hole, blasted out of the water and behind a bunker, landing in the trap and then two-putting to post a one-under-70 for the day.

The treacherous hole was the same one that proved Aaron's undoing in the playoff.

He hit his tee shot into the creek, took a penalty and was unable to sink his shot for par.

"I hit the green and he hit the water and that's the story," said Archer, who pocketed $40,000 for his second tour victory of the season.

Crampton had a three-stroke lead going into the double round, which was required to finish the 35-year-old tournament, delayed a day by rain Friday.

But he had to scramble for a one-under-71 on the morning round to carry a one-stroke lead into the 18-hole finale, where he fell out of contention with three bogeys on the front nine.

South African Gary Player shot a four-under 67 in the third round to come within a stroke of Crampton but was disqualified for failing to sign his scorecard.

"The rule is that once you leave the tent without signing your card, you are disqualified," he said. "You have a set of rules in life and you must abide by them."

Archer's $40,000 first place check vaulted him into second place in the 1972 money winnings on the pro tour, giving him $96,000 to $109,000 for absent Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus skipped Greensboro to prepare for next week's Masters.

Warriors split two games; open Southern tour today

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State College's baseball team warmed up for its southern tour by splitting a doubleheader with William Paterson College Saturday on the ESSC field.

The Warriors scored their most runs in two years in beating Paterson, 8-2, in the second game after the Pioneers had taken the opener, 3-1.

The ESSC team left Sunday for Washington, D.C. where it will meet Federal City College at 1 p.m. today on the East Eclipse Field, directly behind the White House.

Impressive relief pitching by Lynn Koenig and Al Calvo and robust hitting by pitcher Joe Papi and co-captain Al Frick were the highlights of the doubleheader for ESSC.

Koenig hurled the last four innings of the opener, facing only 13 batters and striking out eight. The lefthanded sophomore gave up only one hit.

Paterson struck early to win the first game with one run in the second inning on a delayed double steal and two more in the third on singles by Bob Wilson and Bob Fallon and Bob Humphrey's triple.

The only ESSC run came in the sixth inning as Mark Hoffner walked and rode home on Frick's booming triple to deep left field. Dave Wilson also had a triple for the Warriors in the fourth frame, but was left stranded.

Papi gave Coach Lee Roberts' team all the runs it needed in the second game. His second-inning double drove in three runs after singles by Frick and Dennis Acker and a walk to John Varacallo had loaded the bases.

Another single by Frick and a hit by Scott Myers accounted for ESSC runs in the third and fourth innings. Then the Warriors wrapped up the game with another three-run outburst in the sixth, featuring singles by Calvo and Hoffner.

Paterson had pecked away for a pair of runs off Papi before Calvo took over with two out in the fourth. The sophomore righthander hurled three and one third shutout innings, permitting only two hits.

Last year, the Warriors never scored more than five runs in a contest although they won the Pennsylvania Conference championship.

After today's game, the 24-man ESSC squad will travel to Durham, N.C. for a workout Tuesday and then to High Point, N.C. where a doubleheader is scheduled against High Point College Wednesday.

Final preparation

Charles Vargason of Marshalls Creek helps stock Big Bushkill Creek Saturday. The stocking was the final one in Monroe County in preparation for the April 15 opening of trout season.

Tom Fallon of Paterson slides under tag of ESSC's Dave Wilson on attempted pickoff by pitcher Joe Papi in first game of doubleheader Saturday.

Player says his own fault

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI) —Gary Player failed to sign his third round scorecard Sunday and was disqualified from the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament after moving within a stroke of the lead.

"It's my fault 100 per cent," he said. "I can't make excuses. Those are the rules of golf."

The affable South African, winner of last week's Greater New Orleans Open, was tied with Arnold Palmer and Julius Boros.

"I never felt more confident in my life of winning a tournament," he said.

Player, down by four strokes after Saturday's rain-delayed second round, had seven birdies against only three bogeys in the third round.

Crampton, who captured the Western Open title last year, had to scramble for a one-under 70 while Palmer and Boros turned in 68's.

Player said he checked the card carefully at the completion of the round, the first of two scheduled Sunday to finish the weather plagued tournament.

He said, however, that he was warned that he had only 34 minutes before the start of the second round, and left hurriedly for lunch.

About two minutes later, he said, tournament chairman John Forbis walked up to him and told him his scorecard was unsigned.

"Before I teed off, I wanted to check on it and I told Jack Tuthill (the PGA tournament director) about it," he said.

Tuthill advised Player of the rule and told him he was disqualified from the tournament.

"It was a little disheartening because I played such a fine round," he said.

He added, though, that "everybody has responsibilities in life and the responsibility for this was mine."

"It's really unimportant when you think about poor Gene Littler," he said.

Littler, a tour regular since 1954 and a winner of two tournaments last year, is to undergo surgery Tuesday for cancer of the lymph gland.

Canadiens strike quickly to hand Rangers 6-5 loss

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jim Roberts and Pete Mahovlich scored short-handed goals just 36 seconds apart in the first period Sunday afternoon to lift the Montreal Canadiens to a 6-5 victory over the New York Rangers in the final regular season game for the National Hockey League teams.

About the only consolation for the Rangers, who have failed to win in their last six games, was the fact that team captain Vic Hadfield scored his 49th and 50th goal of the season, making him only the sixth player ever to reach that plateau. Hadfield's second goal of the game came with just 5:14 left. Montreal, which had failed to beat New York in five previous meetings this season, scored in quick bursts during the first period to take a 4-1 lead. Pete Mahovlich touched it off with the game only 54 seconds old and Jacques Lemaire followed with his 32nd goal just 25 seconds later.

After Walt Tkaczuk cut the Ranger deficit in half at 5:30, Roberts and Pete Mahovlich both scored while teammate Claude Larose was in the penalty box for hooking. Roberts got his 12th goal at 14:15 on a pass from Larry Pleau, and he then set up Mahovlich's 35th goal at 14:51.

Hadfield and Rod Seiling tallied within a 35-second span of the second period, Seiling's coming while New York was playing a man short to cut the Ranger deficit to 4-3, but Marc Tardif and Pleau got those two goals back early in the third period.

Score by periods:

Chaps to go all out in game against Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Dallas coach Tom Nissalke, who watched his Chaparrals blow a 17-point lead and let the Utah Stars go one-up in the American Basketball Association playoffs, doesn't plan on pulling any punches tonight in game no. 2.

"We've never let a team come back like that before," the affable rookie coach lamented following the Chaps' 106-96 loss to the defending league champions Saturday night.

But the old Nissalke optimism, nurtured by a 27-15 Chaps' record in their last 42 regular season games, bubbled to the surface as he talked about today's game and the shift to Dallas for games three and four Wednesday and Friday.

"I'll be surprised if they beat us four straight," the former Milwaukee Bucks' assistant said. Saturday night "was one of our worst games in a month; we usually shoot better than that."

In effect, the Chaps outshot Utah from the field, hitting 40 to the Stars' 35. But the real difference was at the freethrow line that Utah used to good advantage, thanks to Dallas' rough defensive game.

"That's got to be the roughest, grabbingest team I've ever seen," said Stars coach Ladell Andersen of the Dallas defense. The Chaps had 32 fouls to give Utah 35 to 39 free baskets, and that tipped the scales toward the Stars.

American chances improve for Olympic swim medals

DALLAS (UPI)—The men who run the diving program agree that the United States has a good chance to pick up some medals in the 1972 Olympics at Munich and that the color of at least some of them will be gold.

They formed their opinions after watching a star-studded field of men and women divers compete for the National AAU Indoor Championships for three days and nights at the Loss Swimming Center.

American divers swept five of the six championships against a small contingent of foreign invaders from Mexico, Canada, Japan, Sweden and Australia.

The only one to get away was the women's 10-meter platform on the final night when comely, 16-year-old Ulrika Knape of Gothenburg, Sweden, upset defending champion Capt. Micki King with near-flawless difficult final dive under pressure she refused to admit existed.

Miss King had won the 1-meter springboard and Cynthia Potter had taken the 3-meter title earlier in the week as each dethroned the other in those two events to establish their dominance as this country's premier feminine divers.

In the men's division, Don Dunfield of the Santa Clara Swim Club broke a string of runnerup finishes to win the 1-meter crown—his first national title despite seven seconds in 16 national meets; Lt. Phil Boggs of the Air Force had taken the 3-meter springboard and Dick Rydze of Pittsburgh, Pa., won the platform to emerge as the only defending champion to repeat.

"We'll have a strong men's team at Munich, but there will be stout competition from the Italians, Australians, East Germans and the Russians," said Stan Kistler, chairman of the men's diving committee.

"The meet here has shown that Dick Rydze, Rick Early, Mike Femeran, Jim Henry, Craig Lincoln, Don Dunfield, Phil Boggs and possibly young Steve McFarland a real comer are really up mentally for this Olympic year.

"They are all young, strong and are showing good control, which is very important. And Rydze and Early are concentrating on the tower and that will be a big help."

Diorio leads Pius to 16-1 victory

ROSETO — Joe Diorio proved to be a one-man wrecking crew Saturday for Pius X High School.

Diorio fired a two-hitter, collected two hits, drove in two runs and scored three to lead the Royals to a 16-1 non-league baseball victory over Bangor.

Diorio, who walked two and a struck out nine, lost his bid for a no-hitter in the fourth inning when Neil Cataline homered for Bangor.

Diorio doubled in two of the Royals' three runs in the sixth inning and singled home another in the eight-run seventh.

Frank DeFrank and Nick Castilano each had two hits for the winner, now 1-1. Denny Strunk's single was the only other hit for 0-2 Bangor.

ESSC evens tour mark with 5-2 net victory

ANDERSON, S.C. — East Stroudsburg State College evened its Southern tour tennis record at 4-4 by beating Anderson College, 5-2, in a rescheduled match Saturday.

The match had been originally scheduled for Friday, but it was postponed because of rain. Two matches remain on the two-week trip against the University of South Carolina today and against Furman Tuesday.

Freshman Chuck Ackerman won his third straight match and raised his record to 6-2 with a straight set win over Rodney McCallister at third singles, 6-3, 6-3.

The doubles team of Ackerman and Bill Zeeh also has a fine 5-2 record as it beat George Skelton and Jim Baker, 6-2, 6-4.

After splitting the first two sets, Pete Stish of ESSC was forced to default the fifth singles match when an injured elbow started to bother him.

ARIES

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Don't try to reach for the unreasonable but do give painstaking effort, not only to routine endeavors, but to the "extras" which may come your way. It will pay off.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Observe small differences of opinion, "little" telltale trends. They could help prevent errors. If all is well, you have the "green light" to go ahead.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Excellent Mercury influences make this a day for BIG accomplishment — even if only in the preparatory stages of new ventures, which can be as important as the actual doing.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Better advantages than you may anticipate at first. An especially good period for revitalizing projects which you may have thought of dropping.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) This day will need team players as well as individualists. Try to curb your usual desire to "go it alone" — and cooperate!

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — If you don't get all the cooperation you had anticipated, don't worry about it. Try working things out another way. You CAN.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Some planetary restrictions. But this does not mean that the day is "lost." With your innate poise, you can hurdle most obstacles. Make concessions where it seems the best thing to do.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Your stellar influences improving, but you could still fall short of the mark, if not careful. Study new trends and suggestions, and do not reject unusual ideas summarily.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — To be stressed now: Coordination, perception, accuracy. A continuing search will turn up many advantages and help prepare the way for improved status.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — A sense of proportion and thorough knowledge of your assignments will be important now. Stressing these, you should fare well.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — If you seem to run into more snags than usual, immediately check, and recheck, if need be. There's no sense in repeating errors or clinging to previous miscalculations.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)) — You may have some "extras" to handle, but adapting yourself to circumstances could enable you to profit in a most heart-warming way.

YOU BORN TODAY are governed by Aries, zodiacal sign of strength, purpose, versatility, mental and physical vitality. You have a magnetic personality, enjoy people, seeing new places, travel for adventure. You love to entertain and you make many friends along life's way — but you sometimes lose them through overaggressiveness or an occasional tendency to "talk out of turn." Try to curb these traits — for your own peace of mind. There are many fields in which you could carve a successful career but, with your gift for words, you would probably enjoy writing the most. If you do not take up some form of literature as an occupation, you would surely enjoy a hobby along these lines. Other excellent outlets for your talents: Music, the theater, the law, politics, sculpture. Birthdate of: Washington Irving, Amer. author; John Burroughs, poet, naturalist; Marlon Brando and Doris Day, film stars.

Wishing Well.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 4-3

Worried about answering a blind box number ad?
(because you don't know who the advertiser is?)

If you are worried about answering one of these blind ads — since it may be your own firm — simply do this:
Place your letter of application in an envelope addressed to the box number and seal it. Then put the envelope in another envelope addressed to the Classified Dept., The Pocono Record, and enclose the names you do NOT want to receive your reply. If one of the companies (or individuals) you listed placed the ad, we will simply discard your reply.
Sorry, but we cannot return your letter without violating the confidence of our advertisers.
